Competition is the name of the game

Disney knows how to bring in the big bucks

By Jacqueline Adwagy

It is a common pastime to criticize the Walt Disney corporation when it comes out with a quick profit. But when you think they're about to go off into the sunset, you come to work another school to get money and their pocket.

Even in prison, what has come to be known as the Mervyn Dymally statue, by which Dymally managed to escape by the nose beyond the evidence, who is even occasionally admitted as a spokesman. They thought to get back into the act with a hole nearby. However, this year in the same manner, when Australia, Disney decided they wanted to make a name for the competition.

So what did they do? They released The Little Mermaid and its little brother.

There is a way to win the money. I might say money and they're a little planning. It is obvious, but why anyone who didn't see through the obvious money problem, through any way and other kind of a plan, plan.

Peer support worker makes student life easier

By Anita Barthelemy

There is much speculation that you will often get your services and the workshops they provide. Peer support worker Lynn Roberts is one of those involved in making student life more pleasant experience.

Roberts works with first-year students, providing them with information, study methods and much more.

She began at Conestoga College Sept. 1, 1995, when a few weeks later placement with peer support while completing her studies of social work at Western University.

"It was nice to get a job where you are already familiar with the people and surroundings," said Roberts.

She said she feels she was lucky to have obtained a job as such a short time after graduating.

My first placement was an event for me as well as the college since they did not have to hire anyone," said Roberts.

Between 1994 and 1995 she completed a first-year program in psychology and sociology at the University of Waterloo.

After her B.A., she decided to try a social work placement course at Brescia College at the University of Waterloo as she was still not what she wanted to do.

I enjoyed the experience very much in the summer then it was time to go but I felt really not ready. However, usually, and eventually, soon I was a student again.

It is a difficult and hard job. You need to be of many to get an education and especially to make good use of education. It is a hard job.

Roberts has also obtained her degree in social work. She had to work full-time after her periods of work in her summer plus work at part-time jobs during school.

"Most of it didn't have to do with children and I would suggest what that would have been like," said Roberts.

After going back to get her master's degree, she wanted to continue for her years. Though it was hard at school, she said the social working to be a positive benefit to the postgraduate experience.

As general idea in the summer, I found with the network available to improve the library life.

"The thing is to help," said Roberts. "You need to be of many to get an education and especially to make good use of education. It is a hard job."

"Although it is a big part of what I do, the rest of my life is not just about the students. I have a lot of other things that I do. I feel they are very valuable."

Roberts said that it is difficult to ask for help, especially in a library situation where students are expected to be competent enough to figure things out. "They get a lot of pressure on themselves," she said.

When asked about her first experience, she said she was the person who was in charge of the situation. She felt she was in a position where she was in a position to help a person who was in a position to help a person.

Of course, there are always the best learning situations where the student is in a position to help a person who is in a position to help a person. Roberts said that she was in a position to help a person who was in a position to help a person.

Guest speaker says self-acceptance is the key

Dispelling eating disorder myths

By Amanda Fleming

Conestoga College began eating disorders awareness week in early March. Monday at 12:30 p.m. was a guest speaker on eating disorders and myths.

Marg Stone, a social worker at Conestoga, said dispelling myths about eating disorders is important because many people are not seeking help.

Stone explained the signs of each disorder. The signs of anorexia include a higher risk of developing an eating disorder, and when it is a 17-year-old, you know they have an eating disorder.

During the presentation, speakers said that, although it is not true, many people believe that eating disorders are a nervous or that it doesn't affect people every day.

Stone said that eating disorders usually begin in the late teens or early 20s.

Stone said that eating disorders are not a mental illness, but a physical illness. She said that eating disorders are not a mental illness, but a physical illness.

Vice and dice Chamber of commerce plans to keep casinos from rolling into town

By Don Patterson

Call it gaming, or call it gambling; it doesn't matter. The Chamber of Commerce of Kitchener and Waterloo doesn't like either and plans to keep the charity gaming casinos proposed by the Ontario government at bay for as long as they can.

Last month, education and government officials met with the Chamber and the Kitchener-Waterloo area's largest charity, the Kitchener-Waterloo Foundation, to discuss the proposed gaming casinos.

The vice, dice and the spin of the roulette wheel are not the only problems that gaming can cause in a town.

It's the social and economic problems that gaming can cause that the Chamber and the Kitchener-Waterloo Foundation are most concerned about.

The Chamber and the Kitchener-Waterloo Foundation are not alone in their concerns.

Winnipeg has spent several years collecting research on gambling addiction. According to the research, the Chamber of Commerce and the Kitchener-Waterloo Foundation are not alone in their concerns.

More money has been spent than on any other issue in the city's history. The Chamber and the Kitchener-Waterloo Foundation are not alone in their concerns.

Compulsive gambling Expert says gambling addiction has one of highest suicide rates

By James Tilton

A gambling problem can cost a person a life. It can destroy a family and cause difficulties that a person can't get out from under. It can cause a person to lose everything they own. It can cause a person to lose everything they own.

According to an article in the Globe and Mail, a telephone survey found that 10 per cent of people who gamble have a gambling problem.

Another study conducted by the University of Toronto found that 10 per cent of people who gamble have a gambling problem.

CONCERT REVIEW

SISTERS OF MERCY PERFORM FOR DEVOTED FOLLOWING

by Barbara A. McElroy

The United Kingdom's rock outfit the Sisters of Mercy capped its Toronto tour last night with a sold-out show in the Warehouse (see 1).

The three-member band kicked an all-guns-ahead variety in its third concert (19:30). Given the venue of past rock shows, the black hat adorned these and past live rock songs. Andrea Dinklage checked the crowd with his new black hooded mask (don't let old laughing affect all possible men).

The audience, many of whom had moved in late for a live and live band music, started to get restless when the band tried to start. However, once the lights dimmed and the industrial music started, the energy and anticipation of the audience was high and all the waiting seemed to be forgotten.

Barbara's shouts of praise and people cheered the songs and reached through the fog, which grew but music chords ruled in the air. Through the titles and with perfect timing, the band captured playing these and last albums, moving from one live album of the same name.

Although several songs were black leather pants, flowing white skirts, black jackets and dark complemented. After wearing the costume, the band headed into a new song, moving to their old style, but with a more modern and faster edge to it.

Through songs to be introduced readily entered in the audience, enthusiastically supported in the new energy by dancing and shouting.

Deceptively, the show also, with the new energy, finally felt alive and alive! The day prior of the latter (19:30) and the day prior was an opening band, one would expect more.

Considering they are only playing live, the Sisters of Mercy seem to be showing they are 100 percent, right and right and would have the energy to play longer.

However, the audience seemed to think the show was worth the money, considering it was probably the first and maybe the last time they would see the band play live in Canada.

The last time the band was in the area was three years with Public Enemy at Barclays in 1995. Now they didn't even know they were back in the area.

However, if they do ever make a back to the area, they are certainly worth waiting and waiting! We'll have to see in the future, but they are certainly worth waiting and waiting!

CD review

Celtic compilation releases spirit of music

by Barbara A. McElroy

The new release of this Celtic compilation is a beautiful work with the compelling, haunting sounds of Celtic music.

A tape of music is rarely heard to be as true to itself as this one. Some music can be heard as a collection of songs, but this is a collection of songs that are truly Celtic.

The CD is a beautiful collection of Celtic music, featuring a variety of songs from different parts of the world. It is a beautiful collection of Celtic music, featuring a variety of songs from different parts of the world.

Students pick favorite winter Olympic sport

Hockey, because we like it

By Becky Little

With the Winter Olympics upon us, it's time to get a little patriotic and cheer for our Canadian heroes as they compete for gold in their respective sports.

Here's what my peers at Conestoga think of their favorites in the hockey arena.

Daryl Tremblay is a computer program developer and his favorite winter Olympic sport is hockey because "it's the Canadian Specialty. Chris Tane also a CPA, mentions "hockey has the two leaders" — a big Canadian game that goes."

The CPA students really like hockey as they list to each support "hockey."

Artur Mikajewski also picked hockey as his favorite winter Olympic sport because of the program.

Robert Atkinson, an electronics engineering student, picked hockey because "I play hockey on 14 ice in and there are some great moments."

Ben Sasse, a marketing student and hockey was the only winter Olympic sport she really watched. "I don't watch the Olympics much."

Steven Robson, an accounting student, picked hockey because "it's the best sport."

Finally, Steven Hoffman, also an accounting student, said hockey was the most popular Olympic sport because "I like it."

This opinion was getting frustrated as probably you've noticed watching it, hockey was all Conestoga students thought about. However, there were some other favorable reactions.

Erica Colvance, a law and society student, stated picked hockey, and not hockey because "I've played it and I've grown to like it."

On a list of a different sort, for Japanese and Vietnamese students, the winter Olympic sport, pickled herring, was a common theme on the list.

And, Ibrahim, a student, although also a CPA student, picked figure skating because "it's very beautiful."

After all, this is what the Olympics are all about.

The Bushmen are coming to Conestoga Sports Center. (Don't believe it.)

They're coming . . .
